Histories of the recruitment of the different branches of the Public Service.

Home Department.

The following histories start from the report of the Public Service Commission and note the considerations which determined the composition of the various Departments as regards the proportion of natives and Europeans employed.

2. The branches of the Public Service with which the Home Department is concerned are—

- (1) Indian Civil Service.
- (2) Provincial and Subordinate Civil Services (Executive).
- (3) Police Department.
- (4) Jails Department.
- (5) Port Blair Commission.
- (6) Education Department.
- (7) Ecclesiastical Service.
- (8) Medical Department.
- (9) Sanitary Department.
- (10) Registration Department.
- (11) Miscellaneous appointments, such as Chief Inspector of Explosives, Inspectors of Steam-boilers, etc.
- (12) High and Chief Courts.
- (13) Law Officers of Government.
- (14) Cantonment Magistrates' Department.
- (15) Provincial and Subordinate Civil Services (Judicial).
- (16) Clerical Establishments in this and the offices subordinate to this Department.

3. Indian Civil Service.—The Statute 24 and 25 Vict., Cap. 54, reserved certain of the higher appointments in the Regulation Provinces to the Indian Civil Service. The principle of the Statute was subsequently extended to non-Regulation Provinces by executive orders in 1876. Natives of India are eligible to compete at the open competition for the Indian Civil Service. Subsequently the Statute 33 Vict., Cap. 3, section 6, empowered the Government in India, subject to rules approved by the Secretary of State, to appoint any native of India who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service to appointments reserved for the Indian Civil Service by the Statute of 1861.

4. Although it has been recognized that any of His Majesty's natural-born subjects are eligible, it has been held that the service must be maintained as an essentially English one. When the Public Service Commission met, there were only 12 natives in it. Since the raising of the age the number has risen to 42.

5. Rules were framed from time to time under section 6 of Statute 33 Vict., Cap. 3. Those issued in 1879 authorized the Government of India to recruit natives up to a maximum of $\frac{1}{4}$ th of Civilian recruits in each year. Under the rules of 1892, which are at present in force, the Local Governments may appoint (with the sanction of the Government of India in certain cases) any native member of the Provincial Service to any of the reserved offices declared open to that service. The number of posts so declared was 95. On the 1st October last the number of Statutory and Provincial officers holding reserved posts was 86, against 43 on 1st October 1887.

6. Provincial and Subordinate Civil Services (Executive Branch).—These are essentially native services, though Europeans may be appointed with the sanction of the Government of India. No proportion has been fixed.

7. Clerical Service.—Under the clerical examination rules $\frac{2}{3}$ ds of all appointments in the Lower Division are made by open competition and the rest by nomination. Appointments to the Upper Division are made by selection from the Lower Division or by nomination.

8. Police Department.—Prior to the Public Service Commission the higher appointments were mainly recruited from Englishmen in India. As a result of the recommendations of that body a competitive examination is now held annually in London simultaneously with the Sandhurst "Further" examination and in the same subjects. A very limited number of vacancies are still filled by competition after nomination in India and direct appointments without examination are made in exceptional cases with the sanction of the Viceroy.

Natives can only attain the rank of Assistant Superintendent by special selection from the grade of Inspector. In the subordinate grades the native element predominates. Europeans are, however, freely employed as inspectors, sub-inspectors, sergeants, and head constables in the Presidency towns and in the railway police service.

9. Jail Department.—Previous to the Jail Committee of 1889 no general principles were observed in filling Central Jail Superintendships. Some years before 1889 a change was made in certain provinces from the previously invariable practice of recruiting Superintendents from the Indian Medical Service. In Bengal, Assistant Superintendents of Police were trained in a grade called Assistant Superintendents of Jails before being appointed Superintendents. In Madras and Bombay appointments were filled by private gentlemen and police officers. District Jail Superintendships were held by commissioned medical officers except certain appointments in Madras and Bombay held by a special grade of officers who were both Jailors and Superintendents.

Central Jail Superintendships are now held by Indian Medical Service officers except half the appointments in Madras and one in Bombay, which are filled by Europeans from outside that service. District Jail Superintendships are also held by commissioned medical officers with some exceptions in Bombay and one in Madras. Deputy Superintendships have not been reserved for Europeans, but it has been recognized that the duties of the post require qualifications such as would ordinarily be found only in Europeans. The subordinate service including that of district jails is filled by natives except in the case of jailors in large central jails containing European prisoners. For such the committee of 1889 recommended the appointment of specially selected non-commissioned officers of the British Army.

10. Port Blair.—No definite rules have been framed as to the proportion of European and native officials serving in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. The Commission as reorganized in 1874 consisted of the Superintendent, a Deputy, 3 Assistants and 5 Extra Assistants. These appointments were regularized in 1892, the designation Extra Assistant being done away with and the 8 officers being treated as Assistants, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, etc. These appointments are held by Europeans with the exception of a single native whose appointment was made as an experiment. The subordinate service of Overseers and Assistant Overseers is recruited by appointing European lads of fair education from Indian schools. The clerks on higher pay in the Settlement are usually Europeans or Eurasians.

11. Education Department.—Superior appointments are filled by officers of the Indian Educational Service. These officers are recruited in England by the Secretary of State, and a native of India appointed enters the service on the same terms as his European colleague. Appointments in the provincial and subordinate educational services are recruited for locally by the Local Governments. No proportion has been fixed.

12. Medical Department.—The Department is composed of four different classes of officers:—

- (1) Indian Medical Service officers who are recruited in England after a competitive examination which is open to both Europeans and natives. No fixed proportion of natives to Europeans is maintained.
- (2) Military Assistant Surgeons, recruited in India primarily for military duty. They are either Europeans or Eurasians. There are no natives.
- (3) Civil Assistant Surgeons, who are usually natives.
- (4) Civil Hospital Assistants, who are purely natives.

13. Sanitary Department.—The superior officers of this Department are commissioned officers of the Indian Medical Service, see 12 (1) ante. The subordinate officers, such as Superintendents and Inspectors of Vaccination, etc., are mostly natives. No fixed proportion is maintained.

14. (1) Registration Department, (2) Steam Boilers Department, (3) Imperial Record Office, (4) Imperial Library, (5) Office of Chief Inspector of Explosives.—No proportion has been fixed for any of these. The Registration Department alone was reported on by the Public Service Commission, who recommended that the Inspector Generalship should not be included in the cadre of the Imperial Service. Boiler Inspectors are all Europeans apparently because qualified natives are not available.

15. High and Chief Courts.—High Court Judges, may be (1) Barristers, (2) Members of the Indian Civil Service, (3) Persons who have held subordinate judicial offices, such as Small Cause Court Judgeships, and (4) Pleaders. One-third must be Barristers, and one-third Civilians. In the Punjab one Chief Court Judge and in the Lower Burma Chief Court two Judges must be Barristers.

Within the limits set by the Statute, the number of Native Judges is three in the Calcutta, and two each in the Madras and Bombay, High Courts.

16. Subordinate Judicial Service.—Subordinate Judges and Munsifs are included in the Provincial and Subordinate Services, respectively, to which natives are ordinarily appointed under the same conditions as apply to those services generally.

17. The appointments of Administrator General and Deputy Administrator General of Bengal are intended for Europeans, though there is nothing to preclude the appointment of natives.

18. Cantonment Magistrates are all military officers.

Foreign Department.

Secretariat—Superior Staff.—The Secretary, Deputy Secretary, and Under Secretary are recruited from the Indian Civil Service, and are filled by Europeans.

The Assistant Secretaryships are filled from the ranks of the Political Department.

The appointment of Registrar was one of the twelve appointments in the subordinate establishment of the Foreign Department which it was thought necessary to reserve for Europeans.

The post of Native ~~Attache~~ is filled by a Muhammadan.

2. Subordinate Staff.—Rules have from time to time been framed with regard to the recruitment of the clerical establishment.

The latest rules issued in 1898 provided that, on the establishment of the Foreign Office under the Government of India, twelve appointments above the grade of R100—150 should be filled by Europeans who were not statutory natives.

Although it has not been possible to adopt in their entirety the rules applicable to other Departments, yet the principle underlying those rules have been borne in mind, as is evidenced by the fact that the number of natives employed has been in 1867 3, in 1877 6, in 1887 13, in 1897 12, in 1903 10.

3. Thagi and Dakaiti Department.—From the inception of the Department natives alone have been employed in the subordinate grades and Europeans in the superior grades only. In the year 1887, under instructions from the Secretary of State, a Special Branch of this Department was instituted under the supervision of the General Superintendent with an Assistant at Head-Quarters, and the clerical establishment of this portion of the General Superintendent's office was composed of Europeans.

In 1892 this establishment was brought on the cadre of the Foreign Office, and from 1899 it has, with the exception of the menial staff, been treated as part and parcel of the Foreign Office.

4. Political Department—Superior Staff.—Officers of the Political Department proper are recruited from Covenanted Civilians, officers permanently appointed to His Majesty's Indian Army, and natives of India specially selected.

5. Subordinate Staff.—No rules have been laid down with reference to the question of nationality in filling subordinate, executive, and ministerial appointments in the several offices attached to the Agencies, but the general principles adopted by the Government of India in regard to the employment of natives of India, as far as possible, have been followed wherever circumstances have permitted. As an instance showing the special endeavours which have from time to time been made to secure that the inhabitants of an Agency or province are adequately represented in the public service, may be cited in the case of the backward province of Baluchistan. The Agent to the Governor General has there introduced rules providing, inter alia, for the employment of at least 50 per cent. of Muhammadans in appointments in the several offices attached to the Baluchistan Agency, as the Muhammadan element preponderates in the province.

The figures given below show the progress which has been made in the direction of encouraging the employment of natives of India in all posts which can properly be reserved for them.

Setting aside the returns for 1867, for which year the data are very meagre, there has been a decided increase in the number of natives employed. In 1877 there were 31 Hindus and 13 Muhammadans; in 1887 the numbers had increased to 52 and 21, respectively; in 1897 they had risen to 71 and 44; and on the 1st April 1903 the figures stood at 98 and 46. Taking the percentage in round numbers, it will be found that the native element represented in 1877 61 per cent., in 1887 64 per cent., in 1897 71 per cent., and in 1903 81 per cent., of the total number of appointments in the subordinate clerical service.

The figures of the North-West Frontier Province relating, as they mainly do, to a province which has only just been formed admit of no useful comparison, but they exhibit the fact that the orders and wishes of the Government of India in the matter of employments of natives of India are receiving attention. The percentage of natives of India employed is 47 per cent.

6. Office of the Superintendent, Political Pension.—No rules have been laid down for the recruitment of the establishment of the Superintendent of Political Pensions. There is only one clerk in the office drawing a salary over R75, and he is a Hindu.

7. Imperial Service Troops.—The superior appointments are filled by military officers.

The subordinate establishment consists of two clerks, both of whom are, on account of the nature of their duties, necessarily Europeans.

Military Department.

Military Staff Offices in India.—The earlier organization of these offices shows that their composition, taken collectively, had always been a mixed one; the recruitment having been from two sources, viz., the Army and the Uncovenanted Service. This method of recruitment still survives in some of the offices; but is moribund as regards the majority owing to the introduction, within recent years, of measures for providing within the peace organization a body of trained military clerks to work the Staff Offices of the Field Army in time of war. The change was inaugurated in 1895 when it was ruled that all appointments on R100 per mensem and upwards in Head-Quarters offices of the four Commands should be filled by soldiers, those of lesser value being filled by natives, and was subsequently extended to all District Staff offices throughout India by the substitution of soldiers for native clerks in those offices.

2. Administrative offices of the Supply and Transport Corps.—Offices of Director-General and Inspectors-General of Supply and Transport.—These offices are recruited in accordance with the rules regulating appointments in the Secretariat clerical service of the Government of India with the following exceptions :—

(i) Office of the Director-General of Supply and Transport.—(a) One appointment carrying a salary of over Rs200 per mensem is reserved for a military man.

(b) Three appointments of less than Rs200 per mensem may be filled by military men.

(ii) Office of Inspector-General of Supply and Transport.—One appointment in each office carrying a salary of over Rs200 per mensem may be filled by a military man.

(iii) Executive appointments.—Prior to 1885 no rules existed in respect to the method of recruiting, but with a view to reducing the undue preponderance of Bengalis (which then existed) and to ensure the employment of a larger proportion of other races the (then) Commissary-General-in-Chief in his circular No. 64 of 1885 instructed the Commissaries-General* of the Eastern and Western Circles to effect gradually a more equal allotment of the posts of Commissariat† head appointments and clerks to all races of Her (late) Majesty's Indian subjects, the following distribution being maintained as nearly as possible :—

One-fourth of the appointments to Europeans and Eurasians,
Ditto ditto to Mahomedans and races other than Hindus, Europeans and Eurasians,
Ditto ditto to up-country men of all classes,
Ditto ditto to Bengalis,

and this order is still extant.

3. (i) Candidates for clerical appointments must have passed the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University or corresponding examination of other Universities or the final or high standard of European schools.

(ii) The prevailing composition to-day of the clerical establishments of the Punjab and Bengal Commands is as noted below :—

(a) Punjab Command.—The Punjabi Hindu element preponderates, and Bengalis hold their own, but owing to Mahomedans not being so well grounded for a clerical life as are the Hindus, few qualified candidates of this race come forward.

(b) Bengal Command.—The Bengali element still predominates, but up-country Hindus are now very nearly up to their due allotment of appointments. Mahomedans also are gaining ground and hold about half of their allotment.

(c) In neither Command does the scale of pay offered ordinarily attract Europeans and Eurasians of the educational standard required, and but few are employed.

(d) Madras and Bombay Commands, and Burma District.—No rules exist in respect to the method of recruiting; the aim has always been to secure the best men, provided they are qualified† and physically fit.

† The educational test is the same as for the Punjab and Bengal Commands.

Hindus predominate in Madras; and Hindus and Parsis in Bombay.

(e) The only other employés drawing a salary of over Rs75 per mensem are :—

The Superintendent of the Government Fodder Pressing Factory at Amritsar and the Condensing Engineer at Aden and Perim—appointments for which selected men are required.

4. Clothing Factories.—(i) Bengal.—As regards the executive establishments of the Factory, Stores and Packing Branches, European (mainly military men) supervisors are employed, while the recruitment of clerical establishments comes under the rules for the regulations of appointments in the Secretariat Clerical Service of the Government of India.

(ii) Madras.—The Madras Tailors establishment is supervised by three military men and under an order of the Local Government the post of Storekeeper is filled either by a European or Eurasian and that of the packing overseer by a native.

Beyond the educational test which is that of the Entrance Examination of one or other of the Universities no rules exist as to the method of recruiting clerical establishments, and while the appointments of Head Assistants and Second Assistants have always been held by Europeans or Eurasians, the general principle kept in view has been an equal distribution among the several races.

5. Ordnance Department.—With the exception of certain appointments (carrying an average salary Rs75 per mensem or over) in this office and the offices of the Inspectors-General of Ordnance (amounting to a total of fifteen) which are restricted to Europeans (military clerks) on account of their technical knowledge of Ordnance stores and equipments, the remaining appointments (which number 82) in the clerical establishments of all offices of the Ordnance Department are and have been open to all classes without distinction. No material change has recently been made in the system of recruiting in the clerical branches, except in the case of the Head Clerk of the Madras Arsenal, an appointment formerly reserved for a warrant officer, but which the Government of India have recently decided may be held indifferently by a military person or civilian.

European civilian personnel for the higher appointments in the Mechanical Branches in the Ordnance Department have been mainly recruited in England under agreement, and this system is still followed. This has been found necessary owing to the special technical knowledge required for such appointments. Men who have undergone training in the large ordnance factories and manufacturing firms in England are specially selected by the home authorities for these appointments. The appointments referred to are those which are held by chemists, mechanical engineers, foremen and assistant foremen of different branches, ordnance and carriage examiners, machine gun specialists, overseers of carpenters, smiths and moulders, and draughtsmen in factories, and civil chief master armourers, mechanical engineers, and assistant foremen in arsenals.

The system of recruiting mechanics, such as overseer and assistant overseer of smiths, overseer of carpenters, overseer of moulders and assistant mechanical engineer for the Gun Carriage Factories, Madras and Fatehgarh, from the Carnatic Ordnance Artificer Company formerly obtained, but has been discontinued, and these appointments are now filled by Europeans trained and recruited in England as mentioned above. The Carnatic Ordnance Artificer Company is being gradually disbanded and the artificers now employed in ordnance establishments are, as they become non-effective, replaced by civilians (Europeans or Eurasians), entertained locally. The leading hands employed in factories are also obtained locally.

6. Medical Stores Department.—The appointments of medical store-keepers to Government are reserved for officers of the Indian Medical Service and in practice always held by them.

The assistant surgeons attached to medical store depôts are exclusively recruited from the Indian Subordinate Medical Department.

The senior assistant surgeon at a medical store depôt may hold temporary charge of a depôt when the exigencies of the service require that this should be done.

As regards the executive depôt staff and ministerial establishment, no specific orders exist as to the method of recruitment. Europeans, Eurasians, and Natives (Hindus and Mahomedan) have been recruited, as suitable candidates have offered themselves.

7. Military Works Department.—Prior to 1881 the Military Works Department formed an integral part of the Public Works Department and was governed by the same rules as regards establishment, etc.

8. Military Works Services.—Since the year 1881, when the administration of what was then the Military Works Branch of the Public Works Department, was transferred to the Government of India in the Military Department, the Engineer appointments have been entirely recruited from military officers; the Public Works title of Chief, Superintending, Executive, and Assistant Engineers were retained until 1899. At the time of the transfer and for some years later there were, however, a number of civil engineers who were considered technically to belong to the department; they consisted of Public Works officers who belonged to the Simla Imperial Circle and those serving in Baluchistan, in which the civil works were for some years under the control of the Military Works Department. In October 1899 the name of the department was changed to the Military Works Services, and service in the administration became the regimental employment of the Corps of Royal Engineer in India. The Military Works Services have since that date been officered entirely by Royal Engineer.

The establishment of upper subordinates is recruited and graded on the same system as that of the Public Works Department. The military element in it has always been in the majority and is composed of British soldiers specially trained in the Thomason College, Roorkee, who qualify by examination and commence in the grade of Overseer. The establishment at the present time is almost wholly military; but there are a few civilians, of whom two-thirds are natives.

There is no fixed proportion of civilians to military in this class of the establishment.

Lower subordinates are without exception natives, who enter in the grade of Sub-Overseer, and are usually men trained at the Thomason College, some of them came originally from the native army.

No attempt has been made to fix the proportion of the different classes of natives.

The clerical establishment is recruited from the domiciled European and Eurasian communities and from natives of the country; the last-named being greatly in the majority. There is no fixed proportion maintained between the various classes.

9. Military Accounts Department.—The superior grades of this department are recruited from the commissioned ranks of the Indian Army. The experiment of promoting deserving subordinates to the superior grades was tried in 1890, but it has not since been repeated.

The subordinate grades are open to respectable persons in civil life, subject to their passing certain prescribed tests. None of the appointments in the subordinate grades of the Military Accounts Department have been reserved for Europeans, but it is recognized that soldier clerks are required in certain appointments demanding technical knowledge. No rules have been framed laying down the proportion of European and native employés to be maintained.

10. Royal Indian Marine.—Such officers of the late Indian Navy as were not retired on the abolition of that service in 1863 were retained for service in the Bombay Marine. These officers were, in course of time, supplemented by recruits from the Mercantile Marine. The engineers were partly drawn from men trained locally, including a few natives and partly from England.

The navigating officers and warrant officers of two turretships which were at that time under the Bombay Marine were appointed by the Admiralty and placed under the Government of Bombay and subordinate to the Superintendent of Marine.

Men of the Subordinate Dockyard Professional Staff were, as at present, obtained from England.

The principal professional officers in the Builder's Branch were Parsis, from the well known Wadia family, who qualified themselves for the post, in the Home Dockyards. These appointments are now recruited from England.

All skilled artificers in both the Factory and Builder's Branches, whether Europeans or Indians, were, as now, recruited from the local labour market.

Conductors, clerks, warrant and petty officers and the seamen classes were, as now, similarly obtained locally.

Since 1883 when the local marine services were amalgamated in the Royal Indian Marine, appointments of officers and engineers have been made by the Secretary of State for India from the Mercantile Marine. Applications from candidates in India are forwarded to the Secretary of State for India through the Director of the Royal Indian Marine and the Government of India.

The clerical establishments are recruited locally as necessary. They consist of Europeans, Eurasians, Hindus, Portuguese, Paris, Native Christians, and Mahomedans, who are engaged alternately as required.

In no case was any fixed proportion of places reserved for particular classes or communities of employés.

11. Army Remount Department.—No orders are traceable as regards the method to be employed in recruiting for the superior and subordinate civil appointments in the Army Remount Department, nor any orders as to relative proportions to be employed in the different classes.

12. Office of the Military Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy.—No specific orders have been issued as to the method of recruitment. There are no Europeans in the clerical establishment of this office. The establishment is recruited from Eurasians, Hindus, and Mahomedans, as necessary.

Public Works Department.

The Department is divided into two main branches—(1) Buildings and Roads and Irrigation; (2) Railways. There is in addition the Accounts branch which audits and compiles the expenditure of the department. The various classes of superior officers employed are:—

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----------------------|
| (1) Engineers. | (3) Traffic officers. |
| (2) Locomotive officers. | (4) Storekeepers. |
| (5) Account officers. | |

In the early days of the department the Royal Engineers and the Staff Corps supplied a large proportion of the Engineers required. Civil Engineers were also appointed both from England and in India. In 1850 the Thomason Civil Engineering College, Rurki, the principal Engineering Institution in India, was started and a considerable number of Engineers, the bulk of whom were of European descent, entered the Department from this source. The Poona and Madras Colleges also supplied the Department with a few engineers. These were chiefly natives of India. In 1870 Coopers Hill College was established and has sent out a regular supply of young engineers each year. In 1882, in order to secure to the natives of India a fair share of the superior appointments in the Engineer Establishment, the appointments guaranteed to the Indian Colleges which had hitherto been open to all classes were reserved for natives of India, but in 1886 this order was slightly modified and all statutory natives of India were eligible for these appointments. From 1892 engineers have been divided into two classes, Imperial recruited in England almost entirely from Coopers Hill, and Provincial, on a lower scale of pay, recruited entirely in India from the Indian Colleges and by the promotion of deserving subordinates. Fourteen appointments a year to this Provincial service are guaranteed. Traffic officers are practically all European or men of European descent. At the present time Traffic officers are recruited entirely from young Europeans or Anglo-Indians who enter the subordinate grades as guards, station masters, etc., and prove themselves, after passing various examinations, qualified for the position of officers. The Locomotive officers are all Europeans trained in English workshops. Storekeepers of whom there are only six, are Europeans or Anglo-Indians appointed in India. Accounts officers were in the early days of the department obtained partly by the transfer of Royal and Civil Engineers from the Engineering branch, and partly by the appointment of selected Europeans in India. In 1893, as a result of the recommendation of the Public Service Commission, the transfer of Engineers to the Accounts Branch entirely ceased and a fixed system of recruitment was introduced. At the present time $\frac{1}{3}$ ths of the vacancies are filled by Coopers Hill students selected by the Secretary of State, $\frac{1}{3}$ ths by the promotion of deserving subordinates and $\frac{1}{3}$ ths by competitive examination of nominated candidates who must be statutory natives of India. In each of the several branches of the Department a large number of subordinates are employed on various rates of pay up to a maximum of Rs500, and the great majority of these are natives of India. The native element largely predominates in the subordinate clerical establishments of all branches, in the Upper Subordinate Engineering Establishment, and in the subordinate Accounts. The European element, on the other hand, predominates on State railways in such appointments as Traffic Inspectors, Drivers, Locomotive Foremen, Subordinate Storekeepers and the better paid posts of Station Masters and Guards.

2. Telegraph Department.—The superior staff was, prior to 1892, entirely recruited in England. In that year a Provincial Service, on a lower scale of pay, was established, and one and two appointments, in alternate years, to this service, were guaranteed to students of the Thomason Civil Engineering College, Rurki. The Department has a large subordinate staff of Sub-Assistants, Telegraph Masters and Signallers on pay ranging up to a maximum of Rs 450 and, on an average, $\frac{1}{4}$ of these are natives and $\frac{3}{4}$ Europeans and Eurasians. The European element, therefore, largely predominates throughout the Department.

Finance Department.

The Home Department has asked us to look up the history of the method of recruitment of the different branches of the public service under this Department, the object of the examination being to ascertain the race-composition of the several branches and the reasons which have determined the proportion of Europeans and natives employed in any instance in which a definite proportion has been laid down.

2. We are required to start from 1886-87, the year in which the Report of the Public Service Commission issued. The following note has been prepared on the information available in this office. It is not complete as regards the subordinate grades of the Departments dealt with, as we have no papers showing how the rank and file of these Departments are recruited, but we understand that it will be sufficient if we confine our examination to the orders and rules issued or approved, from time to time, by the Government of India regarding the recruitment of the Departments with which we are concerned.

3. Civil Account Department.—In 1886 the constitution of this Department was as follows:—

- (1) One appointment of Comptroller General and five appointments of Accountants General were reserved for members of the Indian Civil Service.
- (2) Four appointments in the Enrolled List—the other Gazetted Officers—were filled from the Indian Civil Service.
- (3) All other persons were selected by nomination, and were required to pass a competitive examination before entering the Department. At every third examination the nominees were natives of India of unmixed descent.

Below the Enrolled List there was a class of Gazetted Officers called Chief Superintendents, who were recruited for the most part from the Subordinate Account Service for exceptional qualifications.

4. The recommendations of the Public Service Commission, which were accepted with slight modifications by the Government of India and the Secretary of State, were directed mainly towards the introduction of more indigenous agency into the Enrolled List. In addition to the natives of India appointed at every third examination, it was decided that Chief Superintendents or officers in charge of treasuries or in other departments of the Provincial Service may be appointed to the Enrolled List up to a maximum of one-third of the total number of appointments in that list which are not reserved for members of the Indian Civil Service. Practically all the officers so appointed would be natives of India, though some might be of European or mixed parentage. Two appointments of Accountants General were also thrown open to the Enrolled List.

5. In 1896 an important change was made in the method of recruitment of the European branch of the service. It was found that suitable candidates of European birth and education were not forthcoming in India, and it was decided that they should in future be selected by the Secretary of State in England.

6. The effect of the above changes may be summarised as follows:—

- About 45 per cent. of the appointments in the Enrolled List are to be given to non-domiciled Europeans;
- about 22 per cent. are to be given to statutory natives; and
- the remaining 33 per cent. may be given to Chief Superintendents or other officers specially promoted, who will ordinarily be natives of India.

7. Excluding members of the Indian Civil Service and Probationers the Enrolled List at present comprises 47 appointments, of which 22 are held by Europeans from England and 25 by natives of India.

8. Subordinate Accounts Service.—All appointments on or above Rs 130 a month form a regular service called the Subordinate Accounts Service into which no person can rise by mere seniority. Appointments to the service are made by selection and merit and are open both to Europeans and Statutory Natives without distinction of race.

9. Mint and Assay Departments.—As a general rule, only Military officers are appointed to the Assay Department as Assay Masters and Deputy Assay Masters. The Department comprises only four officers of gazetted rank.

In the Mint Department there are two gazetted appointments, viz., Mint Masters, Calcutta and Bombay. These appointments are filled from the Corps of Royal Engineers.

There is no race disqualification for any of the appointments in the non-gazetted branch of the Mint. The requirements of technical knowledge and mechanical skill which are difficult to procure in India render it necessary, however, to employ a large number of non-domiciled Europeans in the higher posts in the Mechanical Departments of the Mint. We have no information as regards the subordinate appointments in the Assay and Mint.

10. Customs Department.—The rules in force, which are in accordance with the recommendations of the Commission, may be summarized as follows :—

A certain number of the higher appointments are reserved for members of the Indian Civil Service. The other superior appointments are filled by promotion from the subordinate ranks of the service or by selection from other fields. The appraiserships and the Preventive branches of the Department are specially declared to be open to candidates of any race.

Theoretically therefore, with the exception of the few scheduled posts, all appointments in the Department are open to natives. Experience has, however, shown that natives are generally unsuited for Customs work, and the Department has therefore been recruited almost exclusively from the European and Eurasian classes.

11. Postal Department.—The recommendations of the Commission regarding the Postal Department were—

- (i) that of the seven highest appointments in the Department then filled by Indian Civilians, not less than three should ordinarily be filled by promotion within the Department;
- (ii) that in order to enable natives to compete on equal terms with Europeans and Eurasians, a certain number of appointments carrying salaries of from Rs 80 to Rs 100 a month should be filled by competition, the successful candidates being selected after practical training for the grades of Superintendent.

The views of the Commission were accepted. To give effect to the proposal that a proportion of the appointments in the lower grades of the Department should be filled by competition, it was decided to create a number of probationerships to be selected by competition. The avowed object of this plan was to afford natives a better opportunity of entering the superior grades of the Department and to test their fitness for the posts requiring higher educational qualifications and greater physical energy.

The result of these measures has been to raise the native element in the Department almost to the limit of expediency, for it comprises a number of appointments for which Asiatics are not ordinarily suited, such as those connected with frontier work, military expeditions, the Railway Mail Service, and the Sea Service. It has consequently been found necessary to reserve about 10 per cent. of the appointments of Postal Superintendents for non-domiciled Europeans, and the question of obtaining recruits for these appointments from England has for some time been under consideration.

12. Pilot Service.—Appointments to the Bengal Pilot Service are made by the Secretary of State and by the Government of Bengal, the latter appointments being limited to Anglo-Indians and Eurasians. Natives are excluded from the service. The Pilot Service has always been and must continue to be recruited by Europeans brought out from Home or by Anglo-Indians and Eurasians, who when young have taken to a sea-faring life. Natives of India would be unsuitable, and it has never been suggested that natives should be employed as Pilots.

The Commission found no evidence that suitable youths born and educated in India would be forthcoming.

13. Stationery, Printing, Stamps, and Income Tax Departments.—The question of the recruitment of these Departments was not reported on by the Public Service Commission. They are recruited by the Local Governments, and we do not appear to have had any discussion in this Department as regards the method of filling appointments in these branches of the service.

14. Opium Department.—The two highest appointments in the Department (viz., those of Opium Agent) are reserved for officers of the Indian Civil Service. Two other appointments next in rank (viz., those of Factory Superintendent) were also reserved till last year for officers of the Indian Medical Service, but have since been thrown open to qualified departmental officers. The remaining higher appointments (viz., those of Sub-Deputy and Assistant Opium Agents) were, prior to 1884, closed to both natives and Eurasians. It was decided in that year to admit a proportion of natives as an experimental measure. Instructions were accordingly issued to the effect that one-fourth of the appointments should be reserved for natives of unmixed descent, the remaining three-fourths being allotted to Europeans and Eurasians.

In 1886 the Public Service Commission recommended that the experiment of appointing natives by selection to a proportion of the vacancies should be discontinued, and that the Department should be recruited on the same principles as the Provincial branch of the general administration. This recommendation was not accepted. It was held that, as the system recently adopted of reserving one-fourth of the appointments for natives was an experiment, and as enormous financial interests were at stake, it was necessary that the result should be carefully watched before moving further in the direction advocated by the Commission.

The plan of admitting natives of pure Asiatic descent has not yet been found to be sufficiently successful to justify the introduction of a larger proportion of natives, and the Department therefore continues to be recruited mainly from the European and Eurasian community. At present out of a total of 72 superior appointments in the Department, 62 are held by Europeans and Eurasians, and the remaining 10 by natives, i.e., about 14 per cent. There are some 75 appointments in the subordinate grades of the Department; of these 16 are held by Europeans and Eurasians and 59 by natives.

15. Excise Department.—The appointments in the higher grades of this Department are generally filled from other services, such as the Indian Civil Service, the Provincial and Subordinate Civil Services, and the Police. The incumbents of these appointments therefore come from the ranks from which the services which they originally entered are recruited. The only Provinces which have separate Excise Services of any importance are Madras and Burma. In Madras the Excise Department is combined with the Salt Department and is recruited in the same way. There is, however, a special Deputy Commissioner of Abkari on Rs800—1,300 a month, who is an expert in distillery work and is recruited from England. In Burma the Excise Department is as yet on a temporary footing and is mainly recruited from the Police Department.

16. Salt Department.—At the time the Report of the Public Service Commission issued there were three Salt Departments, namely, the Northern India, Madras, and Bombay Salt Departments. The recommendations of the Commission in regard to the Department were (a) that the appointments of Commissioners of Salt Revenue in Northern India, Madras, and Bombay should be retained as scheduled appointments, and (b) that sufficient precautions being taken to secure the requisite physical qualifications, the following principles should govern the recruitment for the other appointments:—

- (i) Promotion from the subordinate to the superior service for conspicuous merit.
- (ii) System of open competition where it is not inexpedient.
- (iii) System of competition among selected candidates where open competition is unsuitable.
- (iv) Nomination in certain cases.

These recommendations were generally accepted and were given effect to in 1891 by rules framed by the local authorities and approved by the Government of India and the Secretary of State. These rules provided for recruitment for the higher appointments in the Department by promotion from the subordinate grades, by nomination, and by competition among a number of selected candidates, and rendered any qualified person eligible for admission to the Department irrespective of race or creed. It was decided that in addition to the appointments of heads of the Department, the offices of Secretary to the Salt Commissioner and of one of the Deputy Commissioners in Madras, and of the Collector of Salt Revenue in Bombay, should also be scheduled appointments.

The rules of 1891 appear to have worked satisfactorily so far in the Southern Presidencies and are still in force there. A larger number of natives are now being employed in Madras than was formerly the case. From Northern India, however, a complaint was received in 1897 that the rules had not proved altogether satisfactory. The Commissioner thought that the Department should be mainly officered by Europeans, and that it should be definitely settled that only one-fourth of the appointments should be given to natives. It was decided by the Government of India that it was not desirable to reserve a proportion of the appointments for pure natives, but the rules were modified so as to leave the Commissioner full discretion in the selection of candidates.

The Salt Department is thus open to all classes of the community in India, and there is nothing in the rules of recruitment limiting the number of Europeans, Eurasians, or natives to be employed. At the same time, the nature of work renders it desirable that the Department should be manned, in the higher grades at any rate, by Europeans and Eurasians; and in actual practice the non-native element preponderates.

A separate Salt Department was created in Bengal in 1898. No rules have been laid down for the recruitment of this Department, nor has the necessity for such rules been suggested. In passing orders on the proposals for the formation of the Department, however, the Government of India expressed the opinion that it is necessary that the superior officers of the Department should be in the main Europeans and Eurasians.

Revenue Department.

Survey of India Department.—According to the old organization, there were three Branches, (1) a Senior Division composed mainly of selected military officers, (2) a Junior Division recruited by competitive examination in the country from Europeans and Eurasians only, and (3) a subordinate or ungazetted staff of natives. In 1884 one out of every four appointments in the Junior Division was reserved for specially selected natives.

Since then, in consequence of the recommendations of the Public Service Commission, the Department was reorganized into (1) an Imperial Service consisting exclusively of officers taken from the Army and of Civilians obtained from home, (2) a Provincial Service recruited entirely from India, and (3) a Subordinate or ungazetted service of natives.

The Provincial Service still continues open to natives whose admission is still regulated by the proportion, vis., 1 to 4 originally fixed.

2. Forest Department.—Prior to 1887, the date of the Public Service Commission, appointments in the Controlling Staff of the Forest Department were held almost, if not entirely, by Englishmen. The reorganization of 1891 divided the Controlling Staff into two branches, the Imperial and the Provincial Service. The former was to comprise exclusively Conservators, Deputy and Assistant Conservators appointed in England, and the latter—Extra Deputy Conservators and Extra Assistant Conservators—appointed in India. The Provincial Service was initiated by the appointment of all men who were before this time in the Subordinate Service as Sub-Assistant Conservators (principally natives), and was to be gradually increased by the transfer of 43 appointments (i.e., 20 per cent.) taken from the Imperial Service which was to be consequently reduced to this extent. These 43 appointments were to be filled by the promotion of the men from the Subordinate grades. These subordinates are principally natives of India and are being gradually promoted as vacancies in the Imperial Service available for transfer to the Provincial Service occur.

3. Geological Survey Department.—At the time of the Public Service Commission the staff of the Department consisted of 17 gazetted appointments and 5 non-graded posts. One of the higher grade appointments and the two non-graded posts were held by natives and shortly after a native was appointed as Assistant Superintendent in the Higher grade. The Public Service Commission came to the conclusion that, "as long as no adequate provision is made for the teaching of Geology and the allied sciences at Indian Colleges, appointments should be made by the Secretary of State without respect to the nationality of the candidates."

The Department as reorganized in 1893 consisted of 16 appointments in the higher grade and five non-graded appointments including two sub-assistants. Up till 1903 there were four natives of India in the Department, two in the higher grade and two sub-assistants, the remaining appointments being filled by Europeans. At present, owing to the retirement of one of the natives in the higher grade and one of the sub-assistants, there are only two natives in the Department. The places left vacant by the retirements have not yet been filled.

4. Meteorological Department.—This Department was not considered by the Public Service Commission. The Department consists of eight whole-time officers, of whom all but one are Europeans. Other appointments are filled by officers from the Educational and Telegraph Services whose main duties are within these Departments and who are not therefore considered in this note. It has been decided to increase the strength of the Department by three appointments which it is proposed to fill by experts from England. There is no rule excluding properly qualified natives from employment in any of the posts in the Department.

The local observation work of the Department is carried on by a large number of officials almost entirely statutory natives.

5. Civil Veterinary Department.—This Department was not in existence at the time of the Public Service Commission. Up till 1901 the superior staff was recruited from the Army Veterinary Department, but it now consists of officers of that corps who have elected for continuous service in civil employ in India and Veterinary Surgeons who have obtained a degree in Veterinary Science in England. The present staff inclusive of the Imperial Bacteriologist and his two Laboratory assistants consists of 24 officers of whom 23 are Europeans, while 1 is a native of India who is a M.R.C.V.S. There is no rule preventing natives possessing the necessary qualifications from entering the Department.

Under the controlling staff a large number of Veterinary Assistants work in the various provinces. They are all natives.

6. Imperial Botanical Survey Department.—The work of this Department is carried on by officers holding other substantive appointments and no separate note is required.

7. Department of Economic Products.—The appointments consist of the Reporter on Economic Products and the Assistant Reporter, both of whom are Englishmen.

8. The Indian Museum, Natural History and Industrial Sections.—In the Natural History Section the appointments are a Superintendent, a Deputy Superintendent, and an assistant to the Superintendent.

The Superintendent is a member of the Indian Medical Service, the post of Deputy Superintendent is vacant while the duties of the 3rd post are entrusted to the Archæological Surveyor, Bengal, who is a European expert.

In the Industrial Section the Superintendent is the Reporter on Economic Products already referred to. There is also an appointment of Curator, the present holder of which is an European. His predecessor was a native of India.

9. Department of Agriculture in India—Imperial.—The four principal appointments at present are:—The Inspector General of Agriculture, the Agricultural Chemist, the Cryptogamic Botanist and the Entomologist, and they are all held by English experts recruited from England. They are assisted by a number of fieldmen, etc., who are all natives of India. The establishment of the Research Station and Agricultural Farm at Pusa will involve a large increase in the staff of the Department. Of the eleven new appointments created, five will be filled by European experts, while selections for the remaining six will be made from among educated natives of India.

10. Archæological Department.—At the time the Public Service Commission published its report the Archæological Department consisted of nine Europeans in the higher grade, and one Eurasian and 20 native draftsmen. In 1890 the staff of the Department was reduced to five officers, all Europeans, and ten native draftsmen.

The Department as at present constituted consists of seven Europeans and one Burman in the higher offices and 15 natives, i.e., five pandits and ten draftsmen.

11. Mines Department.—In 1893 an Inspector of Mines was appointed by the Secretary of State on three years' probation. In 1899 two additional officers from England were appointed. In 1902 the Department was organized as a separate one. The cadre of the gazetted staff consists of one Chief Inspector and two Inspectors. The three appointments are held by Europeans.

ESTABLISHMENTS.

Nos. 419-435.

Simla, the 24th May 1904.

RESOLUTION.

The Governor General in Council observes that allegations have frequently been made to the effect that Europeans and Eurasians enjoy a disproportionate share of State patronage in India and that the legitimate claims of the natives of the country to employment in the public service are comparatively neglected. The matter has been made the subject of complaint by non-official members of the Council of the Governor General for making laws and regulations: it has also been discussed from the opposite standpoint by writers of authority on Indian administration. Moreover, prominence has more recently been given to it in a certain section of the public press. His Excellency in Council has therefore deemed it advisable to institute a special inquiry, extending over every branch of the administration, with the object of ascertaining how far the allegations are well founded.

2. For this purpose the figures of the present day have been compared with those of former periods. It cannot indeed be claimed that the appended statistics attain to mathematical correctness, as will at once be apparent from the explanation that in respect of past years the records as a rule do not give complete information as to the race and religion of employes, which must be inferred from their names. This circumstance makes it impossible in many cases to distinguish between Europeans and Eurasians, while in others it has probably led to Native Christians being treated as of European origin. But the Government of India do not think that the margin of error which these difficulties involve detracts in any appreciable measure from the value of the general conclusions which the figures suggest. Establishment books giving a nominal roll of the personnel of all ranks of Government servants are maintained by the Accountants General. These records are preserved for 35 years. For purposes of comparison, therefore, the years 1867, 1877, 1887, 1897 and 1903 have been selected. Appointments on a pay of under Rs 75 per mensem have been excluded from the scope of the inquiry, as it is evident that below that limit natives of India have practically a monopoly of the appointments in Government service. The statistics extend over a longer period than any hitherto published, and they enter into greater detail than those presented to Parliament in 1892, which referred only to the state of things prevailing on the 31st March 1890, or than those prepared for the Royal Commission on the administration of the expenditure of India which reported four years ago.

3. It remains to explain briefly the general scheme of the attached statements in which the results of the inquiry have been tabulated. Part A, page 1, is a general statement of all civil appointments in India, showing the number held by Europeans, Eurasians, Hindus, and Muhammadans respectively, at the five periods for which figures have been procured. Page 2 of the same statement shows the proportion that each grade of appointments bears to the total number, and the percentages of appointments in each grade held by the various classes of employes. Page 3 gives the same results as page 2 in the form of a simple diagram, devised with the idea of exhibiting the main results so that they can be apprehended at a glance. Part B consists of provincial tables, giving the same set of facts for each of the civil provinces of British India. Appointments directly under the Government of India have been treated for this purpose as though they pertained to a province of their own. Percentage tables and diagrams are attached to each of the provincial tables, as in Part A. Part C consists of a similar set of tables for the departments of Government. These are arranged according to the classification adopted in the civil estimates, and do not in all cases correspond exactly with the organization adopted for administrative purposes. The tables in Part C give actual figures only.

4. With the object of elucidating the main results of the investigation the statements marked Summaries I and II have been prepared. From the former it will be seen that while the development of the country and the organization of its administration have resulted during the past 36 years in an increase in the total number of civil appointments on a pay of over Rs 75 from 13,431 to 28,278, an increase of 110 per cent., the number of posts held by Europeans has increased only by 36 per cent., and the number held by Eurasians by 106 per cent. On the other hand, the number held by Hindus has risen by 179 per cent., and the number held by Muhammadans by 129 per cent. The joint increase in the case of Europeans and Eurasians is only 71 per cent. only: and the increase in the case of natives of this description has been 184 per cent. The percentage of total posts under Government, natives have gained, while Europeans and Eurasians have lost to a corresponding extent.

Europeans and Eurasians

5. The results of an examination by grades are perhaps even more striking. More than half of the appointments in India are and always have been posts on less than ₹200 a month. The European element in these was always small, and is now less than 10 per cent. Of posts on ₹200 to ₹300, the native proportion has risen from 51 per cent. to 60 per cent.; on ₹300 to ₹400 from 23 per cent. to 43 per cent.; on ₹400 to ₹500 from 21 per cent. to 40 per cent.; on ₹500 to ₹600 from 9 per cent. to 25 per cent.; on ₹600 to ₹700 from 15 per cent. to 27 per cent.; on ₹700 to ₹800 from 5 per cent. to 13 per cent. Thus in no single grade has the proportion of Europeans increased, while the native increase has been continuous and striking, and has been larger in the higher grades than in the lower. The ₹800 line may be said to mark the limit of the Provincial Service. Between ₹800 and ₹1,000 there were, in 1867, 4 natives in Government employ; there are now 93. Posts on ₹1,000 and over may be regarded as superior. In 1867, out of a total of 648 such appointments 12 or a percentage of 2 were filled by natives, all of whom were Hindus. In 1903, out of 1,370 such appointments 71 were filled by Hindus and 21 by Muhammadans; the native percentage being, therefore, 7. Thus, even in the case of these highly-paid posts, in which the strength of the European element must in the nature of things be greater, the percentage occupied by Europeans has decreased by 5, while the percentage held by natives has risen to the same extent. The last line but two of Summary I also brings out the striking fact that, though the expansion of British India has resulted in an increase in the total number of highly paid posts, yet the percentage of such posts to the total number of appointments under Government has remained stationary. This affords a complete answer to any suggestion that Government has been raising the standard of pay in the direction of providing a greater percentage of posts for Europeans. The last line but one of the statement deals with aggregate pay. This has risen by 91 per cent. since 1867. When it is remembered that the total number of posts has risen by 110 per cent. during the period, this result indicates that the great increase of efficiency of organization has not been accompanied by disproportionate expenditure. At the same time the aggregate pay drawn by Europeans and Eurasians has risen by 60 per cent. only; while in the case of natives of India the increase is 191 per cent., and in the case of Hindus actually 204 per cent. The last line of the statement confirms the conclusion already suggested, that economy has gone hand in hand with development, by showing that the average pay of a Government appointment in India has been reduced by ₹31 or 9 per cent. during the past three and a half decades. This decrease however has fallen entirely upon the European and Eurasian staff, for the average pay drawn by indigenous servants of Government has risen from ₹175 to ₹188, or by 7 per cent., while that drawn by other classes has fallen by ₹2 or '4 per cent. It may be added that the average pay of a Hindu Government servant (₹186) approximates closely to that of a Eurasian employé (₹194) in spite of the higher expenses of living of the latter: while the average pay of a Muhammadan employé (₹196) is actually higher than either. The last result points to a preference on the part of Muhammadans for the executive (and therefore more highly-paid) posts, to which their traditions and history naturally predispose them, rather than for ministerial employment.

6. To sum up the general results above discussed, the Governor General in Council concludes —

- (i) that the aggregate cost of the civil establishment of Government has nearly doubled;
- (ii) that its average cost has appreciably declined;
- (iii) that there has been no tendency to overweight the administration by the creation of a disproportionate number of highly-paid posts;
- (iv) that while the total average pay has declined, the average pay drawn by natives has risen; i.e., there has been a transfer of posts from European to native agency, which has been more marked in the case of posts on higher, than in the case of those on lower, pay.

7. Some of the further conclusions suggested by Summary II are of interest. This statement deals with the percentages of total posts and of superior and inferior appointments (i.e., posts over and under ₹1,000) arranged by provinces. The increase in the percentage of total posts filled by natives is highest in Burma (27 per cent.), the Central Provinces (23 per cent.), and the Punjab (21 per cent.). This result may be attributed generally to the more recent development of these relatively backward provinces, and, in the case of Burma, to the annexation of the Upper Province. The actual percentage of native appointments is highest in Assam (74 per cent.), Madras (68 per cent.), and Bengal (67 per cent.). The first-named province has but few posts over ₹500; and the majority of its appointments carry a pay not in excess of ₹300, and thus are naturally held by natives. The advanced educational conditions of Bengal and Madras suffice to explain the figures for those provinces. The actual percentage of superior posts held by natives is highest in the cases of Berar (27 per cent.), Bombay (14 per cent.), and Bengal (13 per cent.). The Berar figures are too small to be significant; but the high percentages which Bengal and Bombay also show suggest that in those provinces natives of India have been particularly successful in attaining high office under Government.

8. The Governor General in Council thinks that these results will convince any dispassionate observer that the charge to which reference is made in the opening paragraph of this Resolution is fallacious and unjust. It is that the Government of this country has abused its patronage to the benefit of any class or community of persons. On the contrary, as the development of the administrative organization has entailed the creation of fresh appointments, endeavour has consistently been made to share the privileges and responsibilities of office impartially between class and class ; and His Excellency in Council regards the results of the present inquiry as entitling him to claim that such endeavour has been successful. The general principles which regulate the situation are, he conceives, two in number. The first is that the highest ranks of Civil employment in India, those in the Imperial Civil Service, the members of which are entrusted with the responsible task of carrying on the general administration of the country, though open to such Indians as proceed to England and pass the requisite tests, must, nevertheless, as a general rule be held by Englishmen, for the reason that they possess, partly by heredity, partly by up-bringing, and partly by education, the knowledge of the principles of Government, the habits of mind, and the vigour of character, which are essential for the task, and that, the rule of India being a British rule, and any other rule being in the circumstances of the case impossible, the tone and standard should be set by those who have created and are responsible for it. The second principle is that, outside this corps d'élite, the Government shall, as far as possible and as the improving standards of education and morals permit, employ the inhabitants of the country, both because its general policy is to restrict rather than to extend European agency, and because it is desirable to enlist the best native intelligence and character in the service of the State. This principle is qualified only by the fact that in certain departments where scientific or technical knowledge is required, or where there is a call for the exercise of particular responsibility or for the possession of a high standard of physical endurance, it is necessary to maintain a strong admixture, and sometimes even a great preponderance, of the European element. The Governor General in Council concludes this investigation in the satisfactory assurance that these principles have been vindicated in practice. The statistics annexed to this Resolution show that whatever standard is applied to the admission of natives to Government service, whether it be number or proportion of posts held by them, or the average or aggregate pay drawn, the results are the same. There has been a progressive increase in the employment of natives and a progressive decline in the employment of Europeans, showing how honestly and faithfully the British Government has fulfilled its pledges, and how untrue is the charge which is so often heard, of a ban of exclusion against the natives of the country.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations and to the several Departments of the Government of India for information ; and that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

(iii) Diagram illustrating the proportion of appointments.

Note.—In the diagram the symbol ○ represents Europeans, ● Eurasians, ● Hindus and ◆ Muhammadans.

Each symbol represents 10 per cent. of the total number of appointments. Ordinarily proportions under 5 per cent. have been ignored and those between 5 and 10 taken as 10. In some cases, however, half symbols have been used to represent a percentage of less than 5.

(iii) Diagram illustrating the proportions of appointments.

Note.—In the diagram the symbol ○ represents Europeans, ● Eurasians, ● Hindus and ◆ Muhammadans.

Each symbol represents 10 per cent. of the total number of appointments. Ordinarily proportions under 5 per cent have been ignored and those between 5 and 10 taken as 10. In some cases, however, half symbols have been used to represent a percentage of less than 5.

(iii) Diagram illustrating the proportion of appointments.

Note.—In the diagram the symbol ○ represents Europeans, ⊗ Eurasians, ● Buddhists, and ◆ other Asiatics.
Each symbol represents 10 per cent. of the total number of appointments. Ordinarily proportions under 5 per cent. have been ignored and those between 5 and 10 taken as 10. In some cases, however, half symbols have been used to represent a percentage of less than 5.

(iii) Diagram illustrating the proportion of appointments.

Note.—In the diagram the symbol ○ represents Europeans, ● Eurasians, ● Hindus and ◆ Muhammadans.

Each symbol represents 10 per cent. of the total number of appointments. Ordinarily proportions under 5 per cent. have been ignored and those between 5 and 10 taken as 10. In some cases, however, half symbols have been used to represent a percentage of less than 5.
